

NEW TAX VALUATIONS OF COUNTY APPROVED; DECREASE ENORMOUS

Total of Decrease in Property Value in Pickaway-co is Highest of Number of Counties Approved by State Tax Commission; Amount is $9,462,610; Total in Circleville is Nearly Million.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Decreases ranging from about $1-850,000 to approximately $9,500,000 per county in property valuation for taxation purposes are registered in the abstracts of seven counties approved today by the state tax commission.

These abstracts contain valuations which will serve as the basis for tax collection next year in Pickaway, Jefferson, Fairfield, Champaign, Knox, Monroe and Dark counties. They represent property appraisals for the present year.

The largest decrease, $9,462,610, occurred in Pickaway-co. The grand total of valuations for last year was $39,793,659 compared with $30,331,040 for this year. The 1931 valuation of all taxable property in Circleville is $6,415,310 as against $7,369,780 for last year.

RobinsonCrusoe Existence Of Men Ended

COLON, Panama, Oct. 28.—A strange tale of a veritable Robinson Crusoe existence, lead by three Americans marooned for nearly seven months on lonely Cocos island, was wireless here today from the United States gunboat Sacramento which rescued the three stranded mariners and is bringing them to Balboa.

The Sacramento is due to arrive sometime tomorrow with the castaways, Paul Stachwick, Huron, S. E., Gordon Brainer, Springfield, Ill., and Earl Palliser, San Diego, Cal. All are in good physical condition despite their hardships.

The three men sailed from San Diego last December in the yawl West Wind. Their tiny boat was wrecked April 15 off Cocos island, a Costa Rican possession southwest of Panama in the Pacific. Missing for months their fate was unknown until last Saturday when an American yacht party headed by Julius Fleischman discovered traces of them and reported their probable presence on Cocos to Balboa naval headquarters with the result that the Sacramento was sent out to search for them.

A launch put out from the Sacramento when the men were located on the southeast coast of Cocos island near Dampier Head and the three men swam out to it through the surf, dressed only in loin clothes. Their clothes had been torn to pieces by the wild undergrowth, they explained.

DEMAND OHIO UNION MINES

Union Basis Is To Be Plea Before Governor George White Tonight.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—A demand that Ohio's coal mines be returned to a union basis, after four years of departure from that plan of operation, will be submitted at the opening of Governor George White's mine conference tomorrow, it was reported here today upon reliable authority.

The reopening of the bitter fight over unionization of Ohio mines, which reached its height in 1927 when the "Jacksonville wage scale" contract between miners and operators expired, was predicted to International News Service by a man close to the "inside" of the state's mine hostilities.

TO DECIDE PLEA

Preparatory to the opening of the governor's conference, a meeting will be held tonight among high officials of the United Mine Workers of America to decide upon a policy, but whether that suggestion will be adopted could not be learned today.

BRITISH POLLS SHOW VICTORY FOR M'DONALD

Great Personal Victory Gained by Man Who Sweeps Labor Districts

386 SEATS GRANTED

Confidence In Coalition Government Expressed

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Forging to victory on the crest of an anti-Socialist landslide, Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald has won his dramatic battle for re-election to Parliament from his old constituency of Seaham Harbor, Durham, for years a rock-ribbed labor stronghold.

PERSONAL VICTORY

It was a personal triumph for the premier probably unequalled in his long and colorful career as politician and statesman. Standing as National coalition candidate, he risked his political prestige by challenging the local labor machine which he himself organized and which turned against him when he retired as labor premier to head the non-partisan cabinet in September.

Premier MacDonald's victory over William Coxon, secretary of the Seaham Labor party, and George Lumley, Communist candidate, announced in London this afternoon as returns from all over Great Britain confirmed the overwhelming victory of the National government over Socialist opposition.

MacDonald polled 28,978 votes to 23,027 for Coxon. Lumley came away a poor third with 677 votes.

GET 386 SEATS

Latest returns gave MacDonald and his followers a total of 386 seats in the House of Commons against only 30 for the opposition. But this government total included 330 Conservative seats, virtually ensuring that Great Britain's next government would be a Tory ministry in fact if not in name.

The fact that the election definitely represented a conservative "revolution" against the radical elements of the Labor party could not diminish the glory of MacDonald's personal victory, though it may eventually force him to give way in behalf of a Tory leader, definitely committed to protection and other conservative policies, as prime minister.

It is doubtful whether in British parliamentary history any man of MacDonald's power and prestige ever was willing to risk everything for his ideals, as the premier did in Seaham.

HEAR PLEAS FOR HOSPITAL

45 Ohio Cities Seek Veterans' Hospital; Hearings Are To Be Held Friday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Representatives of approximately 45 Ohio cities will appear before the federal board of hospitalization here on Friday seeking the location of the new veterans hospital to be erected in Ohio.

Officials could recall no such general scramble in any state for hospital location.

No numerous are the delegations that it has been found necessary to transfer the hearing from the veterans bureau to the auditorium of the interior building.

Prior to the death of Speaker Longworth it had been informally agreed that the hospital should go to the Cincinnati district which Longworth represented, but since his death the claims of other cities have been advanced with such insistence that veterans bureau officials decided to throw open the matter of location to all comers.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Governor George White early today was reported "resting comfortably" at the executive mansion after suffering a fractured right collar bone and narrowly escaping death last night when his automobile skidded into a ditch on the Dixie highway north of Findlay.

The chief executive was to be taken to White Cross Hospital here today for a complete X-ray examination to discover the exact extent of his injuries, received as his car "saddled" on a runaway highway and plunged into a deep ditch. White, according to a statement by Carl W. Smith, his secretary, was returning to Columbus from Toledo when the crash occurred. He had conferred Tuesday with officials of several banks which recently closed there and was conducting an investigation of the city's banking situation.

FRESHMEN TOP HI CLASSES IN HONOR AWARDS

GRADE CARDS OUT

Small Number of Failures Are Reported

With 15 honor students listed in the high school for the first six weeks of school, cards were handed to 1400 pupils in the city, Wednesday. The report cards are to be signed by the parents and returned within three days.

As a whole report cards are considered good, even better than usual.

According to E. I. Cephart, high school principal, most of the pupils under his supervision had good grades. Only one high school pupil failed in three subjects for the six weeks, while several were down in two. Most of those who failed in anything at all were down in only one subject. The first six weeks of school cannot be judged so well as periods later on when the actual ability of the pupil will be learned.

TEST IS DIFFICULT

In order to obtain first honors in the high school, the pupil must have grades of 90 or better in four or more subjects, to be a second honor student, the pupil must have a 90 average in at least three subjects.

First honors for the high school were given to Dale Ankrom, sophomore; Elsie Ann Brehmer, freshman; Avenell Haecker, junior; Rosemary Jackson, junior; Otis Mader, freshman; John Mason, junior; Gene Rader, junior; and James Reichelderfer, freshman.

NINE FRESHMEN

Of the last 15 it is learned that nine of the honor students are members of the freshman class, the first part of this year usually being difficult for numerous pupils. The fact that high school and grade school are considerably different makes the first year of high school more difficult, but evidently not for this class which started its high school career in such a noteworthy manner.

Only one sophomore is listed on the honor roll while four of the students are juniors. Only one member of the senior class has made the necessary grades to reach the "select list."

NEGROES DIE FRIDAY NIGHT

Walter and Blanton Ralls, Murderers of Ohio Sheriff, Lose Supreme Appeal.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Walter and Blanton Ralls, Crestline negroes convicted of the murder of Sheriff George Davenport last January 23, today lost their last hope to escape the death penalty when the State Supreme court rejected a motion for a re-hearing of their cases.

As a result of the supreme court's decision, the two negroes must die in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary, where they are now confined, Friday night.

The supreme court made known its decision in the case of the negroes today without comment.

Sheriff Davenport was slain on the night of January 23 while attempting to arrest Walter Ralls on a charge of chicken stealing. The shooting occurred at the home of Elijah Ralls, brother of Walter, at Crestline.

Following the shooting, during which Sheriff Davenport was fatally wounded, Walter and Elijah Ralls, along with Blanton Ralls, a nephew, were arrested.

While being held for questioning in connection with the sheriff's death the following day, Elijah Ralls attempted to escape through a jail window. He was shot and killed, however, in the attempt.

Senator Claims Demos. To Draft Newton Baker

New Rail Head

Walter S. Franklin (above) is rapidly approaching the king row in what happens to be a game of "railroad checkers." He was president of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironroad road; now he has been made president of the Wabash Railroad. Close followers of railroad affairs believe Franklin may succeed Gen. W. W. Atterbury as head of the Pennsylvania system when the latter retires in about 18 months.

Reynolds Says Former War Secretary, One of 'Nation's Biggest Men'

FOR NATION LEAGUE

Says Split Over Candidate Will Cause 'Draft'

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Embarrassed by laudatory estimates of his friend's statesmanship, a prediction that former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker will be "drafted" to accept the Democratic presidential nomination was made today by State Senator James A. Reynolds (D) of Cleveland.

An acquaintance of Baker for more than 40 years, Senator Reynolds called the former secretary of war "one of the biggest men in the country" and forecast that the Democratic nomination will go to him by a landslide when his candidacy is once pushed.

Baker's declaration that he will not be a candidate will not dissuade his friends, and, in the end, they will force him to head the Democratic ticket, Reynolds avers.

SUPPORT IS SEEN

"The whole state will rush to his support once the movement gets under way. One state, of course, will not be enough, but that will not stop him. From all over the nation will come vigorous backing," he said.

"One is powerful enough a political figure to prevent his nomination—no one."

"Opposition in Ohio could not hope to stop him, of course. This is unthinkable."

"I predict that Baker's nomination will be made after the Democratic convention has split over a selection."

"His name will be turned to by a crowd of delegates who hope to prevail upon him to settle the dispute."

"They will force him—draft him—and that will be the beginning of a great campaign."

Reynolds' statement was regarded as important here due to his long standing as one of the leaders of the Democratic party in Cleveland.

FOR NATION LEAGUE

Baker's stand for the League of Nations was said by Reynolds to be one of his strong points.

"For many years, Baker, when asked to speak, insisted that he discuss only the League of Nations, for which he has uncompromisingly stood since the plan was worked out by President Wilson. He is still as sincerely an advocate of the league as ever," Senator Reynolds stated.

Spirit Changes As High School Works for Game

Although still slightly dismayed over last Friday's performance of Circleville high school's football machine, Coach "Pete" Herberholz has not given up the ship and has been working the boys harder than ever the past few days grooming them for Thursday afternoon's conflict with Westerville.

The Red and Black expects a victory over the Franklin-co team. Coach Herberholz has made several changes in the lineup, due to the resignations of two regulars. Bill Hegge will go from the center position to end; Herb Thomas will replace Hegge at center and Paul Rooney will play a tackle; Dean White and Bob Griffith will alternate playing the other end position, the former on defense and the latter on offense. Leroy Moore, the sensation of last week's encounter, who received a nose injury in the fracas has recovered and will be found in the lineup. Carl Purcell and Med Good have dropped from the squad.

According to Coach Herberholz an entirely different attitude on the part of the team is being expressed. Monday there was no practice held for regulars and the underclassmen were put through scrimmages. However, despite the fact that they were told not to report for practice, Leroy Moore, Merle Davis, Lawrence Styers and Bill Robinson displayed their aggressiveness and spirit by running around the track several times. Coach Herberholz is well pleased with this attitude.

The entire squad was put through a stiff scrimmage session Tuesday evening and was undergoing a light workout this evening. The Westerville game was moved to Thursday, as a state teachers' meeting is being held in Dayton Thursday. The football squad will leave the high school building Thursday at 12:15 p. m.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning 'Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931, C. M. Co.

BUSINESS MAN?

SHOULD SAY SO
Lou Kusner of The Cliftona Theater was pleasantly surprised Tuesday night on having one of the city's younger generation ushered to his office carrying a watermelon.

The youngster on being asked what could be done for him stated that he desired to see the picture but had no money and figured that he could get in on the exchange of the watermelon for a ticket.

It was explained to the youngster that the film companies would not take watermelons in payment for the film, but nevertheless it would be a pleasure to have this young business man see the show. It is believed that the force had a watermelon party after the show.

OHIO GRIDDERS ARE CONFIDENT

Scare of Over Confidence Keeps Willaman on Edge For Indiana Contest.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Although the Ohio State eleven should not be over-confident, following their 10-0 trouncing by Northwestern last Saturday, Head Coach Sam Willaman and his corps of assistants are using as their key note in all advice and coaching this week, "Be Careful."

Pre-season game.—Why Coaches Turn Gray?—has the Buckeyes already ready the winner at Bloomington, Ind., next Saturday, and the fans think that this game is just a warming-up contest. And Coach Willaman realizes that Ohio is just a little too confident of defeating a team that won a surprise victory over Chicago last week for the first time in many years.

The varsity was sent through a light practice last evening, following a two-days' vacation. An offensive forward pass drill and a demonstration of Hoosier plays by the reserves comprised the practice as far as the first team was concerned.

Ohio coaches are literally "up against it," as the boys down around the corner would say. They don't want to work the boys too hard in preparation for what seems to be an easy game, and yet they must guard against that deadly disease named "over-confidence." Coach Willaman believes that his boys need a few days of light work, considering the schedule they have been through so far this season—which was no set-up, any way you look at it.

Famous Cough Prescription

Almost 'instant relief' from coughs is now guaranteed in the use of the physician's famous prescription called Thoxine. It works on an entirely different principle; having a double action, it relieves the throat irritation and goes direct to the internal cause not reached by cough syrups and patent medicines and the cough stops like magic, usually with the very first swallow.

Taken before retiring, Thoxine absolutely prevents night coughing, and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. Contains no chloroform or harmful drugs. Children like it. Remember—relief within 15 minutes from coughs or sore throat, or your money back. 35c, 60c, $1.00 bottles. Sold by: Hamilton & Ryan, and all other good drug stores. Adv.

Education and Earnings

STATISTICIANS of the department of the interior have reduced the relationship between learning and earning to a dollars and cents basis. They cite figures which they claim prove conclusively that education, like advertising, pays in cold cash.

For example, according to their figures, the college graduate may anticipate life earnings of $175,000 while the boy who terminates his schooling in the elementary grades can hope to acquire only $60,000 by his own labor during his life span. On the same basis the high school graduate will earn $110,000.

This survey arrives at the further conclusion that the man without high school training will reach a maximum earning power of $1500 a year at the age of 43 after which his earning will fall off sharply.

The high school graduate will attain his maximum earning capacity of $2500 a year at the age of 44 and his earning capacity will not decline until after 60. Even at 70 he will have an earning power of $1500 a year.

In sharp contrast with the others the college trained man starts with a larger income, increases it more rapidly and even at late in life as 60 has an earning capacity of $4400, which drops to $3500 at 70.

These are, of course, all averages. They do not mean that the under-educated cannot exceed the earnings of their class or that all educated men can earn as much as the average for their class. But they do mean that other things being equal the more education the more earnings and the longer the earning period.

Radio For All

RADIO engineers in developing that new mechanism known as the radio receiver have solved the radio problem for hundreds of thousands of rural homes which have been dependent upon batteries for their radio power.

The old battery way was unreliable, expensive and inconvenient. The new mechanism, to be made by all leading radio manufacturers, takes up the slack. The set will run for a year on a new type of battery.

Federal Radio Commissioner LaFount thinks the new set offers a real solution to the problem growth of the radio audience and in much wider use of radio among farmers.

Radio reception cannot be said to be perfected until it is as accessible to the farmer as to the city listener. Because of its relative isolation and lack of opportunities for recreation, the farmer has more need for the entertainment offered by the programs on the air. His claim is further strengthened by the importance to him of radio market reports which are of little or no use to the urban owner. Produce prices are the lifeblood and the steering mechanism of his precarious business.

The radio industry was not actuated by altruism in bringing out this new receiver. It was thinking of the third of the rural homes without electric current.

Cost of Colds
PHILADELPHIA'S public health department has taken a cost account of the common cold and found that it costs the United States two million dollars annually in loss of time, energy and expense of treatment. This is a lot of money to sniffle away.

The common cold is one of those diseases which the medical profession can treat but has never been able to eradicate. Cold prevention has not progressed very far.

Public health agencies and physicians can tell the people to wear adequate clothing, avoid drafts, keep the feet dry, maintain a warm house and office temperatures and good ventilation and sanitation, keep regular hours, refrain from overwork, watch the diet for overindulgence and keep away from persons having colds.

All this medical science knows but it cannot give a simple preventive that will guarantee no colds for ever after.

Of course most colds are the result of man's habitual refusal to take care of himself. He cannot be bothered with a lot of anti-cold pills until his nose begins to run and he starts to cough and shake and he starts to feel the economic loss involved in avoiding these things which court colds might exceed that which results from this commonest ailment of diseases harassed mankind.

"Blessed was the man who invented sleep." Twice blessed will be the man who rids humanity of the common cold.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

CHAPTER XL
STRANGE meeting was held that night at the house on West Seventieth Street.

So extraordinary was the gathering that, had they known, the reporters would have descended en masse on the house of the Commissioner, frantic at the whispered reports of new developments in the Foster case. No one would tell what was afoot, did they learn that all the witnesses had been hurriedly summoned and were now corralled in one of the chambers on the second floor of the Commissioner's house. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Foster and their adopted son, Bruce, together with Betty Cardfield, Harry Armstrong, Mrs. Haberhorn and several others who would not have been recognized by the reporters at all—especially a boy with buck teeth—a valuable and protesting Italian barber, and a locksmith. The doors of the house were guarded by patrolmen.

But an infinitely stranger gathering was held in the library of the Police Commissioner.

In front of the desk sat George Maskell, prim and precise, his fingers tips together, his chair in his huge, upstanding collar. Across from him sat his wife, Natalie, looking pale and august and beautiful. Between them, grim and thoughtful, slouched the prisoner, Doctor Humphrey Maskell.

Facing this embattled trio stood District Attorney Merle Dougherty, his pudgy hands clasped behind his back, his red curls ruffled, his blue eyes glittering. Dougherty refused to sit down but stalked angrily back and forth as if he found it difficult to contain his indignation at these bizarre and unbecoming proceedings. His marching raised a wind that fluttered the leaves of my note-book, as I sat waiting to make a record of all that was said and done.

Irregular Proceedings.

Tranquil and mysterious, looking somberly upon them all, Thatcher Colt suddenly appeared at the little private door.

"Good evening," said the Commissioner, standing by his desk. Before any one could reply, Dougherty declared himself.

"I want to say," he blurted, "that I regard this entire proceeding as entirely irregular. Why are we here?"

As Thatcher Colt busied himself with his pipe, he replied, "To rehearse, step by step, the bizarre and unbecoming proceedings, and to accuse the actual criminal—whom I now have safely under lock and key."

Dougherty's face flushed an even deeper red.

"Then we are wasting time. The actual criminal is under arrest," he snarled. "If Doctor Maskell is not, as I understand it, prepared to make a confession?"

"Confess to what?" interrupted Natalie Maskell, with spirit. "We have made it very plain that our client confesses to nothing."

Dougherty glared at the "she-lawyer," as he once called her, with a belligerent air.

"Set down, Dougherty," counseled Thatcher Colt, in a placating tone, "and let me explain."

With his left arm slung up over the back of the chair and his blue eyes fixed like a sentinel's on the pale and impassive face of the prisoner, Dougherty blinked and sat down.

"Shoot!" he exploded, indignantly.

"I know who killed Geraldine Foster," began Thatcher Colt, promptly. His quiet voice was free from all excitement. "I know how Geraldine was killed, and why. I am prepared to prove every statement I make to you after the fashion of the start to the finish of this bloody business."

He now turned his attention directly to Dougherty.

"I will first tell you about Doctor Maskell," he said. "The doctor is the victim of an unfortunate marriage. He has never tried to free himself from this wicked and parasitic woman—until he fell in love with Felice Morgan. Her marriage, too, was unfortunate—but she stayed on, out of pity and loyalty to her mother-in-law. It is true that this man and this woman sinned in the eyes of a conventional world. But that was the only offense Doctor Maskell committed—except that he left Felice Morgan to make preliminary arrangements and return for Felice, his little girl and her mother-in-law. He intended defraying all expenses, procuring a double divorce, to be followed by a marriage. That was the reason this crime was committed."

"How do you know that?" asked Natalie Maskell. "It is an interesting, but hardly plausible theory."

"It is the logic of the whole evidence," I put it first, but I found it last.

"I would like to hear the facts first," purred Dougherty with covert sarcasm.

"Neville, you will assume with me that our unknown character, 'X,' was money crazy! Some time within the last two years, 'X' suddenly conceived a brilliant scheme. It had a touch of genius, which is to say, of madness. By the death of Geraldine Foster, 'X' foresaw gain. The temptation must have been—no, plainly it was—irresistible."

"I do not know how long it took to hatch this cunning and blood-thirsty notion. But I am sure that even the most consummate schemer would be unable to lay it out in all its perfect detail without months, perhaps years of thought. For it was put together with the patient perfection of Chinese puzzle boxes. Finally, it all fitted. The scheme was complete. It was ready for execution."

"So far, all sheer assumption?" remarked Dougherty.

"Means to an End."

"For the accomplishment of this crime, it became necessary for 'X' to obtain a sample of the handwriting of Geraldine Foster. This was elaborately managed. Out of the West came a letter for Geraldine Foster—a single genealogical inquiry from one Mr. Ephraim Foster. Apparently some old fanatic on the subject of the Foster family tree was trying to trace its branches and to him Geraldine was a new twig. In his very first letter he assured her that she was descended from a line of kings. Fascinated by the thought that she had royal blood in her veins, Geraldine replied to the letter. Several exchanges followed—and then Geraldine heard from the genealogist no more. All her letters were returned."

"Now it happens that I was able to find the original letter to Geraldine Foster from Ephraim Foster. Geraldine had turned it over to her parents, as they were curious about it, too. With this clue in my hand, I sent a wire to the chief of police in the little town of Willoughby, Kansas, from which the letter came. Through the local police, I had the post-office box opened, and I learned with considerable amazement, that the box was rented in the Willoughby post office by a transient visitor to a nearby town—one who came there about five months ago, stayed a few weeks, and then departed, suddenly and mysteriously, never to be heard from again, and leaving no forwarding address. That was in August of last year."

"But from the postmaster I was at least able to obtain a description of the character whom we now know as 'X' and as Ephraim Foster—a description which may have been vague but which was nevertheless astounding."

"For the postmaster at Willoughby, Kansas, declared that the so-called Ephraim Foster was a woman you look surprised. Will you feel more astonished if I tell you I was not surprised. That I had expected to find that the genealogist who wrote Geraldine wore skirts."

"When you know all the story, you will know that my first examination of that house in Reddler's Road. I suspected that the murderer did not dress as a man. And already a suspicion of who this clever 'X' might be leaped into my mind—for I was told that the motive—a woman who wrote to New York during all August."

VOTING MACHINES GIVEN USE FOR FIRST TIME ELECTION

COLUMBUS, O.—Voting machines will be operated for the first time in an Ohio election next Tuesday.

Election officials have arranged for the use of two such machines at Shaker Heights, Cuyahoga co., and four at Akron.

These half-dozen machines, were recently approved by the state board of voting machine examiners, consisting of Daniel Brown, Dayton, member of the Montgomery co. election board; George T. Rindie, Jr., Cleveland, and Earle J. Forster, Toledo. Forster and Forster are experienced mechanical engineers.

Members of the board, chosen by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, after testing these machines at Dayton and submitting them to more rigid inspection at laboratories in Cleveland, decided that they met requirements stipulated in the Ohio election laws as passed at the last session of the state legislature.

General use of voting machines at Bureau state elections would result not only in speedier returns but would involve a saving of at least about $150,000 at each election over the present system, election officials predict.

They pointed out that from $400,000 to $500,000 is paid annually in Ohio's approximately 10,000 precincts for election expenses, including the compensation for such officers varying from $5 to $10 per day. With the present statutes permitting the merging of two precincts for each voting machine, election officials declared that a saving of about 33-1-3 per cent, or approximately $150,000, would result in the reduction in the number of precinct officers.

Each voting machine costs about $1,000.

Although voting machines have been used for a number of years at elections in a number of states, no general sentiment has yet developed in Ohio for their operation.

It is claimed that one voting machine will register and tabulate the votes of about 800 voters between the time the polls open and closing time. Under the present system, more than 350 persons are able to vote in any one precinct.

Neither the secretary of state nor any other state election officials at the statehouse, it was stated, will knowingly take any action which might be construed as tending to favor the use of voting machines.

The development of sentiment favoring the machines will be left to the local committees, officials declared. These officials, however, voiced their willingness to co-operate with all county authorities who register a desire to see these machines placed in operation in their home county.

Ohio's revised election code provides that voting machines may be used in any county, or municipality, provided a majority of the electors voting endorse the proposal at a general election.

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—A Colorado dairy herd has been awarded the highest milk producing record in the United States. Eleven registered Guernseys owned by Robert Reemer, who lives near here, produced an average of 11,111 pounds of milk each, containing 582.1 pounds of butterfat, during the past year.

MUSKINGUM PLAYS FOR WINTER NAMED

NEW CONCORD, O.—Senior students at Muskingum college will present two dramatic productions this winter. Both casts have been selected and are at work under the direction of Miss Virginia Gibson and W. H. Ewing of the department of speech.

Leading parts in "Twelfth Night" will be played by Miss Alice Smith, Youngstown; Miss Maybeth McRoberts, Pittsburgh; Miss Mildred Gibson, Kuttanning, Pa.; Cyrus McCown, Leeburg, Pa.; and David Hawthorne, Coraopolis, Pa. Principal characters in "Death Takes a Holiday" are: Miss Elsie McGeorge, Steubenville; Harrison Rose, Lore City; and Bruce Maguire, Youngstown.

SCHOOL DEBATORS WORK FOR SEASON

NEW CONCORD, O.—Debaters at Muskingum college are in training for their inter-collegiate forensic schedule this winter. Two teams, under the direction of Dean C. E. Lavton, are preparing arguments on the question: "Resolved, that the collective ownership and control of the means of production and distribution are preferable to private ownership and control."

Speakers chosen for the teams are: Affirmative, Harrison Rose, Lore City; Albert Campbell, Midway, Pa.; James Kier, Canton; Negative, Carl George, Canton; William McLean, Dayton; and Paul Andrew, Tontola, Nebraska. Debates will be held at Ohio University, Toledo, Capital University, Columbus, and Wittenberg and Otterbein colleges.

Air Baths for Good Health This Winter

When Sun-Bathing Is Inconvenient Try This Beneficial Treatment in Your Own Home, Advises Dr. Copeland. But Take Precautions Against Catching Cold

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

SUN-BATHING is popular all over the world. From the most famous beaches to the ordinary back-yard, this practice has received the endorsement of young and old.

The value of sunlight as a means of combating disease is appreciated by all. Certain foods are now manufactured which have been exposed to the sun for this reason the sun is believed to be more valuable.

A good sun-bath improves the appearance. It gives its possessor a healthy and rugged appearance, and a feeling of well being.

Lately, great emphasis has been placed on the importance of air baths. This is particularly important in the winter, when it is often not convenient to obtain the beneficial rays of the sun.

Air baths are of great advantage in that they tone up the texture of the skin. The skin is one of the most important parts of the body, yet its importance is often disregarded. By means of the skin the temperature of the body is maintained. In addition, the skin, like the kidney, and the bowel, serves as an organ to rid the body of wastes.

When the skin comes in contact with the air, beneficial changes occur. The skin is given a chance to function as Nature intended.

As a result of modern civilization and our modern clothing we close and seal the skin. This danger is particularly great in winter when most of us shut out the cold. Those who live out-of-doors and in the open air are less susceptible to colds and infections than those who are confined indoors.

By means of the air bath, the whole body is given an opportunity to come in contact with the air. It permits ventilation of the pores of the skin.

Air baths should be taken in the morning, beginning with short time exposure. Please remember that cold air is not so bad as cold water. It is not beneficial when the exposure is sudden and prolonged.

Air baths are usually given indoors, although they are of greatest benefit when done in the open. The bath should be taken in a moderately cool, well ventilated room. It is best that this room be adjacent to a warm dressing room. The first air bath should be taken with only half the body exposed. As the body becomes accustomed to the cool air, more clothing can be removed.

The bathing process begins gradually. The exposure being short at first and gradually lengthened. This bath should never be given to feeble or elderly individuals, nor to a child who has never been accustomed to cold air.

The air bath may be taken immediately after a cool tub bath. If this is done it is best to see that the body has been thoroughly dried. Make sure that there are no drafts or undue exposure to cold.

PROSECUTOR FIGHTS

bunal should pass upon the questions of law involved as a guide to the future trial of this case and of other cases arising under the state banking laws.

Prosecutor McLean claimed that the Daugherty case is one of general and considerable public interest and of equal concern to members of banking institutions and to the public by reason of the large numbers of bank failures and the resulting indictment against bank officials.

McLean also contended that the appellate court ruling in the Daugherty case is directly contrary to that of the Hamilton-con appellate court in the case of Frank J. Dorger and Clarence A. Dorger, who were convicted in Cincinnati on charge of embezzling funds of the Cosmopolitan Bank and Savings Company while they were officials of that institution.

The Dorger case is now pending on appeal in the Ohio supreme court.

order admitting his client to bond and vacating the appellate court's writ of supersedeas which postpones Capone's trip to Leavenworth.

"We don't want Capone to waste his time sitting in the county jail when he might be getting credit on his sentence," Ahern declared.

IS NOT CREDITED

In the county prison the convicted gang leader is not credited with having served time on his sentence. Should Justice Van Devanter of the supreme court refuse to either order Capone's release on bail or the vacation of the appellate court writ, Capone's actual imprisonment would be nearly two years more than the ten-year federal prison and one-year jail term imposed upon him by Judge James H. Wilkerson.

PUBLIC ORGANIZATIONS BACK PLAN OF WELFARE DIRECTOR

COLUMBUS, O. — "Cooperation of public spirited organizations is doing much to inform the people concerning the urgent need for the $7,500,000 state welfare bond issue. We are confident that if their appeals reach all of Ohio's citizens there will be an overwhelming 'Yes' vote on the bond issue in the election Nov. 3, John McSweeney, state welfare director, reported this week.

"The American Legion, the Spanish American War Veterans, the League of Women Voters, the Ohio Federation of Labor, the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and all organizations of social workers have endorsed the program and their members are presenting the advantages of the proposal to the electorate throughout the state.

"There is no partisan politics in the referendum and these organizations are lending their aid because they are moved solely by humanitarian considerations.

"The only question involved is whether Ohio citizens are willing to authorize expenditures of $7,500,000 so a beginning may be made of remedying conditions that disgrace the state. Whether the insane, the feeble minded and other state charges in our institutions, shall be rescued from the hazards of overcrowding and other conditions that make for potential disaster depends upon the 'Yes' votes of men and women who go to the polls election day.

E. D. LAMBRIGHT, EDITOR OF THE TAMPA (FLORIDA) TRIBUNE, SAYS:

"A short time ago in New York City, a nurse, noting the suspicious actions of a 92 year old woman recluse she was attending, took advantage of the old woman's temporary absence to make a hurried search of the room. Hidden in faded clothing, she found $500,000 in $10,000 bills. A later search disclosed $400,000 more in cash and good securities. The old woman had hoarded nearly a million dollars for 24 years, explaining that she got scared of banks during the panic of 1907.

"The incident revealed one of the causes of the existing financial and unemployment situation. The money which was thus hidden for years did no one any good. It was of no benefit to the possessor, except in the mere sense of possession. If she had put it to work, it would have made much more money for her, enabled others to make money, provided employment for many.

"It is estimated that between $800,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 are similarly concealed in this country. If these dollars could be put into circulation, they would hasten the return of prosperity from its hiding-place around the so-called corner.

SAVING ON OHIO'S COAL BILL TOTAL IS $65,698, DISCLOSE

COLUMBUS, O. — Savings of $65,698 on the coal bill of Ohio for state institutions so far this year were reported this week by Harry Rettig, state purchasing director.

In effecting the economies a market has been created for grades of Ohio-mined coal for which there formerly was practically no demand, Rettig announced.

The savings include $48,237 on the prices paid for coal. This reduction has been effected largely by interesting greater numbers of bidders on contracts and thereby creating sharper competition. A saving of $17,460 on freight costs has been brought about through this increased competition which has made it possible to obtain lowest bids from producers so located with relation to the point of delivery at institutions that inexpensive freight hauls have been greatly multiplied.

Adhering to Governor George White's policy of using none but Ohio-mined coal in state institutions, a plan initiated in the administrations of former Governor Vic Donahay, present state officials are completing as rapidly as possible installation of new firing equipment at Longview Hospital, Cincinnati. This institution is the last in which it has been necessary to burn West Virginia coal because the power plant was not of the type adapted to the use of the Ohio product. When the new equipment is in operation the Longview Hospital bill for Ohio coal will be $10,700 a year as compared with $15,900 a year for imported fuel, a saving of $5,700 a year although

George W. Groom President Of Dramatic Club Organized Here

George W. Groom, W. Mound-st., elected president of the newly organized Dramatic Club at its first meeting Tuesday evening. Other officers named were Miss Marion Hiller, vice-president; Dick Robinson, secretary and treasurer, and Elliott Barnhill, business manager. A committee to draw up a constitution and by laws was named by the president and it was decided to name the new organization, "The Sign of the Mask."

The club has for its purpose the encouragement of dramatics among the people of Circleville, also to promote a closer relationship between the talented as well as the untalented, and to give those persons who have acted before and who are really "Good" in the different parts which they have taken in plays, a chance to continue on the road to success, and at the same time enjoy their work.

It has been said that a Dramatic Club is impossible for Circleville but with the help of the public, the co-operation of all members, the officers in charge feel that it will be a success.

The interest and co-operation of all citizens of our Community is earnestly solicited.

At the present time the membership includes: Miss Mary Walters, Miss Kathryn Marion, Miss Helen Snyder, Miss Marian Hitler, Miss Helen Hitler, Miss Veronica Kuntz, Miss Martha Mary Wolfe, Miss Minnie Lyle, Miss Eleanor Ryan, Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Thomas Renick, Miss Elizabeth Roundhouse, Miss Anne Bennett, Miss Mary Crist, Miss Wilhelmina Haacker, Elliott Barnhill, Gladden Troutman, Richard Robinson, Eugene Smith, Evan Phillips, Bud

WASHINGTON TREE PLANTING IS SWEEPING ENTIRE NATION

When Herbert Hoover, thirty-first president of the United States, planted an elm in the White House grounds on April 21 in the name of George Washington, he had as precedent for his action just 1,952,670 similar plantings, all made as part of the bi-centennial tree-planting program inaugurated by the American Tree Association. And since he received from the Association the buff and blue certificate marking his enrollment with those who have paid their respects in this novel manner to the First President, nearly two million more trees have been set in the ground, to be dedicated on February 22, 1932, the second hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth.

Thus is the citizenry responding to the call to honor a national hero as no hero has been honored before. It is estimated that more than 10,000,000 living, growing memorial trees will have been erected to the Father of his Country before the end of 1932, the bi-centennial year.

Hardly a little red school house far from the cities and hardly a civic organization immersed in affairs of business have failed to plan for a Washington tree memorial. The governors of many states, following the lead of John Garland Pollard of Virginia, have wielded the spade to set out trees on executive mansion grounds. In Grand Rapids, Michigan, 12,000 trees, dedicated to the revolutionary war leader, mark the start of a George Washington town forest which eventually will have 50,000 or 60,000 trees and this city is rivalled by Hibbing, Minnesota, Laona, Wisconsin, Jamestown, New York and many other places.

Every school in Ocean County, New Jersey, has registered a planting with the American Tree Association, and the schools of Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania, have 13,000 seedlings in the ground. Women's clubs, with the example of tree-planting Mrs. John F. Sippel, their Federation president, before them, have laid aside their manifold duties to perform a patriotic service the nation will long remember. From Alaska, where hundreds of trees are already set out, to Florida, where the clubs are placing a Washington tree in each school yard of the state, the women's organizations are honoring Washington.
